CRP attend Horizon Europe Conference Rome

Last month CRP's Senior Programme Manager, Fiona Coull, was delighted to take part in the UK–Italy Horizon Europe Brokerage Mission on Climate and the Built Environment.

Bringing together a range of experts from academia, industry, SMEs, local authorities, and research & technology organisations, the event aimed to share knowledge, discussing pressing climate challenges, and explore collaborative solutions to enable more sustainable cities.

A huge thank you to Innovate UK Business Connect for organising such an inspiring and insightful event, and for connecting us with so many forward-thinking organisations.

CRP February Round Up

CRP Hosts CLSRTP Meeting

In January, CRP hosted the Central London Sub-Regional Transport Partnership (CLSRTP), a collective of 11 central London boroughs that focus on transport priorities.

The online meeting included exciting updates from TfL and central London

Pathways to Net Zero Conference

Cross River Partnership (CRP) joined transport, planning and sustainability leaders in Birmingham last month for the inaugural Pathways to Net Zero conference, hosted by Landor Links.

The event brought together experts from across the UK to explore how the transport boroughs on walking, cycling, EVs, active travel strategy and public realm improvements.

Camden Town Unlimited Co-design Session

Over the past few months, a series of innovative co-design workshops led by CRP Partner Camden Town Unlimited and the Camden Collective have been transforming how local people imagine the future of Camden High Street. This has been delivered as part of CRP's Healthy Streets Everyday II (HSEII) programme.

Sessions brought together paid neighbourhood designers, residents, businesses, and partners to help re-envision the iconic high street.

Southwark Urban Logistics Hub Visit

Our recent visit to British Land's new multi-storey Southwark Urban Logistics site with Aver PR offered a fantastic look at how London's logistics spaces are evolving.

The site features a range of potential units, designed with high ceilings and key infrastructure like three-phase power to support modern e-cargo bike and EV logistics operations. It was encouraging to see practical additions such as blue roofs alongside improved staff facilities like a kitchen and office spaces.

Good Health for All: The Kings Fund

This month the King's Fund have launched a report on the forecasted doubling of healthcare spending.

As the King's Fund's Sarah Arnold writes:

“In my view, how much the government spends on health is a vitally important question. Should we be concerned about an ever-increasing quantum spent on health care? Yes, because it is not necessarily bringing the desired gains in health, and because it crowds out spending for other areas – that in themselves are important and may also improve health.”

“The key to truly ‘shift the curve’ is to get serious about prevention, about intervening early, about spending our resources so that people are able to live their lives in good health rather than needing expensive healthcare.”

CRP is very interested in delivering to reduce social and health inequalities, and particularly in addressing some of the factors that can address health outcomes e.g. lack of access to outdoor space, lack of exercise.

Many of CRP's delivery programmes are designed to do exactly that, for example Just Streets, Healthy Streets Everyday II and more upcoming health sector projects which will focus on improving health outcomes of staff and patients through the use of active travel and physical activity, to support mental and physical prevention.

Lambeth Sets a Clear Direction for Its Night Time Economy

Lambeth Council has launched its first Night Time Economy Strategy at Electric Brixton, outlining practical steps to strengthen the borough's offer after dark. These include new night hubs in busy town centres, an expanded network of 36 safe havens, improved rideshare pickup zones, and support for gig economy workers and grassroots cultural venues.

Lambeth's approach aligns with several themes central to our work here at CRP, particularly around strengthening local centres, supporting cultural identity and taking a partnership led approach to improving places for residents, businesses and visitors.

This strategy sets a clear direction for Lambeth's evening- and night time offer and provides a positive example of how boroughs can shape welcoming and resilient places across London.

Air Pollution Joins Europe's List of Proven Cancer Risks

Air pollution has now been formally recognised as a cancer risk in Europe for the first time, after being added to the latest edition of the European Code Against Cancer.

Recommendations outlined in the report encourage individuals to:

- Limit their exposure by choosing public transport, walking or cycling instead of driving
- Choose low-traffic routes when exercising outdoors
- Keep homes free of smoke by avoiding the burning of coal or wood.

Cross River Partnership has a wide range of programmes that improve air quality by shifting polluting vehicle journeys to active travel modes, helping to improve health outcomes and reduce cancer risk.
